Diversity & Multicultural Week September 26-29

“Living, managing, and working in a diverse and global environment” During Diversity & Multicultural week the University Minnesota Crookston Diversity & Multicultural Affair’s office seeks to reinforce to the campus community that diversity is one of UMC’s core values, and that we embrace and value people of all different backgrounds and groups. Through Diversity & Multicultural Week we will host events including diversity seminars, ethnic food, music performances, and exhibits to recognize and celebrate the various cultural and personal differences of students, staff, faculty, and the community. There will be a Brown Bag Luncheon Series beginning on Monday, September 26 at Noon in Brown Dining Room A & B with the Presentation Topic: "Working with Native American Tribes and Students."

The presenter will be Mike Miller - Coordinator of Cultural Programs for the University of Minnesota Morris. This presentation will offer insight on the characteristics of American Indian communities and students. It will provide examples of Indian humor, respect, cooperation, spirituality, extended families, and life in general. These characteristics will help those who plan future interactions with the Native and American Indian communities, governments, and people. Information on other Brown Bag Series topics will be provided in next week’s Eagle’s Eye.
