Prestigious Horace T. Morse Award

Associate Professor John Loegering, Ph.D., Presented with Prestigious Horace T. Morse - University of Minnesota Alumni Association Award for Outstanding Contributions to Undergraduate Education. Professor John Loegering, Ph.D., who teaches in the Natural Resources Department at the University of Minnesota, Crookston is a 2009 recipient of the prestigious Horace T. Morse - University of Minnesota Alumni Association Award for Outstanding Contributions to Undergraduate Education. An award ceremony recognizing this year’s recipients will be held Monday, April 27, 2009, at the McNamara Alumni Center on the Minneapolis campus. The ceremony and reception begins at 3:30 p.m.

Loegering, who advises some 35 undergraduate students, has a unique teaching appointment that includes a 50% joint appointment on the St. Paul campus that focuses primarily on outreach and research. In spite of this split appointment on campuses 300 miles apart and a heavy teaching and advising load at Crookston, he has completed six publications; three dealing with effective communication of technical information.

A certified wildlife biologist, Loegering currently serves as advisor to the Student Chapter of The Wildlife Society, a group he helped organize when he arrived on the Crookston campus in 2000. He received the Outstanding Service Award from the Minnesota Chapter of The Wildlife Society in 2008 and is the organization’s current president.

Loegering’s outstanding teaching ability earned him honors as the 2004 /Continued on next page...

Horticulture Students Represent UMC at PLANET

A group of horticulture students representing the U of M, Crookston took part in PLANET (Professional Landscape Network) Student Career Days March 26-29, 2009, at Cal Poly Pomona in Pomona, Cal.

Mike Field, a junior from Spicer, Minn., placed 5th in the Leadership Skills event. Jada Ellenberg, a senior from Ely, Minn., and Mike Field placed 6th in the Landscape Maintenance Operation event. Over 800 students enrolled in collegiate horticulture programs across the country participate in this annual competitive event.

Theo Lenneman, a freshman from St. Michael, Minn., and Mike Field placed individually in the overall top 100, and Jada Ellenberg placed in the top 50.

Outstanding Educator of the Year, a recognition given by students, and his faculty colleagues honored him with the 2005 Distinguished Teacher of the Year. He developed the wildlife management program on the Crookston campus and is a successful grant writer. Over the past six years, he has directed the Nature Northwest Project, an ecotourism initiative which has also included several of his students. He has been involved statewide with the wildlife aspects of the Master Gardener program and has provided assistance with the outdoor and science initiative at the White Earth Indian Reservation near Mahnomen, Minn.

Over the years, students have felt the influence of Loegering on their academic and professional careers. Deb Fowler-Caron, a former student and teacher herself, appreciated his variety of teaching techniques to encourage learning. “Dr. Loegering’s presentations were filled with energy and enthusiasm, and I can honestly say I could hardly wait to get to his class,” says Fowler-Caron. “Most of his presentations were supported with technology that provided something for each type of learner. His friendly, yet professional personality invited stimulating class discussions that had all of his students participating.”

Dan Svedarsky, professor and head of the Natural Resources Department and a fellow recipient of the esteemed Morse-Alumni award, recognizes the outstanding contributions of his colleague. “Dr. Loegering is clearly a cut above the rest as far as his teaching, research, and outreach accomplishments and his commitment to undergraduate education.”

Loegering is being recognized for the award along with Donald Alstad, Ph.D. (Ecology, Evolution, and Behavior); Carmen Latterell, Ph.D.(mathematics); Doreen Leopold, Ph.D.(chemistry); Albert Markhart, III, Ph.D.(organic horticulture); James Stout, Ph.D., (geology and geophysics) from the Twin Cities campuses and Stephen Castleberry, Sr., Ph.D. (marketing) and Justin Rubin, Ph.D., (music) from the Duluth campus.

Since 1965, the University of Minnesota has recognized a select group of faculty members for outstanding contributions to undergraduate education. In addition to honoring individual faculty members, the award contributes to the improvement of undergraduate education at the University by publicizing their work to serve as a resource for all faculty members.

Upper Iowa Sweeps Golden Eagle Baseball

April 3, 2009 (Crookston, Minn.) – Upper Iowa University took advantage of seven University of Minnesota, Crookston errors in game one and rallied from a run down in the night cap to sweep the Golden Eagles today in Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference (NSIC) action in Fayette, Iowa. The Peacocks captured game one 11-2 and game two 7-6.

Game One Recap: UMC opened up a 2-0 lead before Upper Iowa tied the game with two runs in the bottom half of the second. The Peacocks exploded for seven runs in the bottom of the fourth with only three hits but five Golden Eagle errors. Upper Iowa added a run in each of the fifth and sixth innings to win the game 11-2. Jarrod Esquibel and Lucas Wilsing each had two hits and an RBI for the Peacocks. Wilsing hit a solo homerun while Brock Spangenberg added a three-run homerun. Devin Croal (Fr, IF, Coon Rapids, Minn.) and Casey Woodside (Fr, C, Albert Lea, Minn.) each added a hit and an RBI for the Golden Eagles. Brain Solemsaas picked up the win for Upper Iowa allowing two runs on five hits. He struck out three and walked none but did not get the win. U of M, Crookston’s Andrew Gunderson (Fr, RHP, Oakdale, Minn.) threw five innings allowing three runs on seven hits. He struck out one and walked four.
Medication Therapy Management (MTM) for UPlan members

Medication Therapy Management is a patient care service in which you have face-to-face meetings with a specially trained pharmacist who can help you improve the quality and effectiveness of your medication therapy program. The University will offer the MTM program to eligible UPlan members beginning March 15, 2009. If you are interested you must call Jan Pederson, 218.686.5562, to set up an appointment. The next date at UMC will be Thursday, April 9th, SSC 244.

Beating the Flood

Weather Service says Second Crest also will happen in Crookston

The National Weather Service on Friday came out with a somewhat surprising new outlook saying the Red Lake River has a 50% chance of reaching a second crest at 25.3 feet, after the river reached 25.6 feet on March 24th in Crookston. The Weather Service is now giving percentages of probabilities of flooding and on Friday issued the following possibilities for chances of exceeding stages at Minnesota Tributary locations starting April 9th.

The City of Crookston had built up the dikes to 28 feet, but will be concerned with certain spots in the city and how the levees will stand up again after being soaked with flooding waters for over a week, plus the added moisture in the form of rain and snow and now the slow melt coupled with the saturated soil in the valley. The saturation usually becomes the enemy of a levy over time. It can cause the embankment to be less stable and slide. The current Red Lake River level in Crookston as of 4:00 PM on Sunday (April 5th) was 14.84 feet.

The Crookston Emergency Operations Center was shut down over a week ago and City officials said they be meeting Monday to discuss the latest outlook from the weather service. Temperatures are expected to be in the 40’s by mid week.

In Fargo on Friday, the National Weather Service predicted a second crest of that shows a 75% chance of being over 41 feet. Fargo officials say though they still are on guard, they predict it will be below 39 feet. The weather service had predicted the first crest in Fargo to be over 43 feet, while it crested a week ago at 40.82.

Some have become frustrated with the predictions of the weather service, who say the predictions are complex. They come from round-the-clock work by hundreds of scientists, engineers and other experts. Some of those people brave the river for measurements of volume, flow and temperatures. Also use computer models for mathematical and statistical analyses. But even with improved forecasting methods, the river’s record levels and the volatile temperatures don’t allow anyone to be certain, and the National Weather Service continues to hedge their predictions.

UMC Public Relations

UMC Public Relations Class Commemorates the 5th Anniversary of the Communication Program by Inviting Alumni Back to Campus for “Where are they now” Event

The University of Minnesota, Crookston Public Relations class is reaching out to the alumni of the Communication program. They are inviting them back to campus on April 14, 2009 to celebrate milestones and accomplishments. The Public Relations class is commemorating the Communication program’s 5th anniversary with a “Where are they now” event that will take place in the Northern Lights Lounge from 12 - 2 p.m.

The Public Relations group that is putting on this event consists of Becky Langlois, Stefanie Rude, Jill Leoni, Max Sarrassin, and Kalil Field-Mackall. They have been working extra hard to make this event a success. “We are very excited to see alumni come back on campus to give us a little insight for the real world. We encourage you all to come out and celebrate with us”, says Jill Leoni.

The Communication program started back in 2004. The program now officially has 13 successful alumni. The Communication program is an opportunity for students to develop writing, presentation, and interpersonal skills to communicate effectively with coworkers, clients, and the public.

Joke of the Week

Why Athletes Can’t have regular jobs

1. Chuck Nevitt, North Carolina State basketball player, explaining to Coach Jim Valvano why he appeared nervous at practice: “My sister’s expecting a baby, and I don’t know if I’m going to be an uncle or an aunt.” (I wonder if his IQ ever hit room temperature in January)

2. Frank Layden, Utah Jazz president, on a former player: “I told him, ‘Son, what is it with you? Is it ignorance or apathy?’ He said, ‘Coach, I don’t know and I don’t care.’”

3. Shelby Metcalf, basketball coach at Texas A&M, recounting what he told a player who received four F’s and one D: “Son, looks to me like you’re spending too much time on one subject.”

4 Amarillo High School and Oiler coach Bum Phillips when asked by Bob Costas why he takes his wife on all the road trips. Phillips responded: “Because she is too damn ugly to kiss good-bye.”
Sixth Street Planning

Sixth Street Planning Charrette Scheduled April 9, 2009, at the U of M, Crookston; Event begins at 6 p.m. in Dowell Hall 212. A collaborative session to work on the design of greenspace in Crookston will be held Thursday, April 9, 2009, at the University of Minnesota, Crookston. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. in Dowell Hall 212. The discussion will focus on the design for a Sixth Street greenspace located west of the underpass. Everyone is welcome to participate in the session.

The greenspace design and construction are a joint project with the City of Crookston, the and the U of M, Crookston. Assistant Professor Eric Castle, an instructor in the Natural Resources Department, is leading the campus efforts and involvement with students from his landscape design and landscape installation and maintenance classes at the Crookston campus.

Geologic and hydrologic factors on the Red Lake River led to an unstable bank on Crookston’s Sixth Street, and in 2003, homes located there were severely damaged and eventually demolished. The greenspace will be enhanced by this scenic and recreational restoration of the area along Minnesota State Highway 2, which is an east-west route through the city.

The students participating in the project are working on it as part of a service-learning opportunity for their class. Service learning is a method of teaching, learning and reflecting where participants learn and develop through active participation. Service learning combines academic classroom curriculum with meaningful community service.

Hausauer Places Fourth at Zone Finals

Lindy Hausauer (Sr, Moorhead, Minn.) placed fourth at the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA) Hunt Seat Equestrian Zone Finals on March 29. The event was hosted by Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind.

The fourth place finish just barely kept Hausauer from advancing to the IHSA Nationals. The three regions brought their top two riders for the Zone Championships. So only the top athletes were in contention.

“Lindy was at the top of her game and rode very well,” says Golden Eagle Hunt Seat Equestrian Coach Brooke Marcus. “I am very proud of how well UMC was represented this weekend.”

Scholarship

The Northwest Minnesota Women’s Fund, a component fund of the Northwest Minnesota Foundation, is pleased to offer scholarships to women from the 12 counties in the Women’s Fund service area who are pursuing post-secondary education at a public higher education institution in the area (Bemidji State University, Northwest Technical College in Bemidji, Northland Community and Technical College at Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, the University of Minnesota Crookston, and the White Earth Tribal College). Preference will be given to women who intend to remain in the region upon graduation. Scholarship funds are to be used for tuition and books or direct educational material expenses.

BSA Auction Raised Money for Victim Services

The Black Student Association (BSA), led by Freshman Lauren Williams and Junior Athena Mussenden, sponsored an auction on Thursday, April 1, 2009, to raise money for Polk County Coordinated Victim Services. The auction, called "Catering to the Ladies of UMC," began at noon with the auctioning of dinner dates for the evening. Students purchased play money to use during the auction and $180 was raised in the effort.

A formal dinner was served in Bede Ballroom by Brown Dining Room staff at 7 p.m. that evening. The event was held in recognition of Women’s History Month. The purpose of BSA is to provide support, guidance and resources to the African, African-American Students of the Crookston campus; while bridging the gap of understanding among all nationalities on campus and in the community.
Volunteer Opportunities
Submitted by Lisa Loegering

*There has been a request from some folks in the small town of Linton, ND who are in desperate need of sandbaggers. It’s a small town, Southeast of Bismarck, ND and they haven’t had any luck finding enough people to help fight their unexpected flooding. Right now, they’re fighting a losing battle and are definitely not prepared for the flooding that has been forecasted in a few weeks. Volunteers will have a place to sleep and food will be provided. To get more information and directions, call Daniel Jellicorse: 701-893-8283

Humane Society-They are desperately in need of volunteers to help clean kennels and walk dogs. The greatest need is from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. The Polk County Humane Society is located at 720 East Robert Street. Please contact Mary Solberg at 281-7225 for more information or to volunteer.

Humane Society Thrift Store-This new thrift store is a fund raiser for the Humane Society. Help is needed to sort items and in sales. Contact Betty Chapman at 281-3781 or 281-7225 for more information.

National Youth Service Day-Mark your calendars for Saturday, April 25 from 9 a.m. to noon. We will do service projects around Crookston.
Sign-up sheet is on bulletin board across hall from Lisa Loegering’s office.

Month of Young Child Family Event-This is a family event sponsored by early childhood organizations. Help will be needed for set-up, clean-up, and attending children’s activity booths. Date and location are still TBD, but it will be in late April.

The first three months of 2009 have been historic. The downturn in the economy is having a significant impact on the region. At the same time, we experienced what some called an old-fashioned winter and now flooding in many Red River Valley communities.

The University of Minnesota, Crookston played a major role in responding to the call for help from the City of Crookston last Tuesday. More than 600 students, staff, and faculty assisted with a sandbagging effort that many say will keep the city safe from the Red Lake River. It’s yet another example of how the campus works together with the community to make a positive difference.

Working together in a spirit of cooperation is inspiring, whether it’s fighting a flood or solving a budget problem. That spirit was never more important than it was last Tuesday, and it’s equally important now as we move toward implementing decisions that will reduce our budget by 5% or just over $1 million. The challenge is significant, but I want to offer assurance that it is manageable.

As chancellor, I have responsibility to manage the campus budget and the budget reductions. I take this very seriously, both as chancellor and as a taxpayer. I’ve managed annual budgets of $25 to $30 million for ten years, and with the support of talented administrators, faculty, and staff, I have been able to meet budget challenges like those we face now.

Planning for a 5% reduction is difficult, but we accept our share of the burden facing Minnesota. Our process is consultative, which means I make decisions based on what I learn when engaging in both formal and informal dialogue with faculty, staff, students, and others who care about the future of the campus.

Please know I welcome, receive, and consider all the advice people are willing to take the time to give me. Over the past few months there have been three campus-wide forums as well as a survey conducted by the Faculty Consultative Committee soliciting ideas from the campus community. These venues have provided opportunities for students, faculty, staff, and others to engage and provide input.

While uncertainties remain, we met the March 27 deadline for submission of the 2009-10 budget to central administration. We will now move forward to begin implementation of budget decisions. I know this is difficult, so I want to be clear about the process.

First, all budget decisions at the University of Minnesota, Crookston are guided by principles set by the University’s Board of Regents. A) We will maintain the quality of our programs – the U of M diploma our graduates receive. B) We compensate, support, and retain faculty and staff who show the talent that guarantees quality in our programs. C) We work hard to make the University affordable for our students. And D) we strive to increase productivity by reducing costs and improving service and efficiency.

Second, increases in fringe benefit costs, utilities, and other operational costs will be covered by the campus budget.

Third, increases in tuition revenue over the past two years will be dedicated to meeting our 5% reduction target, which means fewer reductions in budgets across campus. This also assumes no major reductions in enrollment, so it will be vitally important for us to continue to work together to meet enrollment goals.

Fourth, to keep lay-offs at minimum, open positions have either been eliminated or will be kept open. Two administrative positions have been eliminated: the vice chancellor for finance and the associate vice chancellor for academic affairs. An open staff position in the Center for Adult Learning and two open positions in Facilities and Operations will continue to be held open. Other staffing reductions include eliminating an administrative assistant position, transferring two staff positions to auxiliary funding sources, and reducing appointments for three staff members.

Taken together with cost savings from the elimination of the men’s hockey program in athletics, all these strategic reductions have allowed us to meet a budget reduction totaling $1,054,000.

It’s important to remember that the University budget will not be final until sometime after the legislature adjourns. This date is uncertain.

My accountability is to the taxpayers of Minnesota, the University Board of Regents, the University of Minnesota, Crookston faculty and staff, and above all the students we serve by providing the best possible education that prepares them for success.
