Wednesday, January 30, 7 p.m. in Kiehle Auditorium

Are you ready to sit back and think there’s no way he can do that? Be prepared to be amazed, weirded out, and entertained!

Christopher Bolter is one of the nation’s hottest mind readers and magicians in the market! Headlining at over 100 college campuses per year and working for some of the biggest companies in the world have made Chris a favorite from coast to coast.

Born in Boston, Massachusetts Chris spent his summers with his family organizing and managing many state and local fairs and festivals. Specifically in Marshfield, MA where Chris was introduced to performers of all styles and varieties. Making his way around the midway, Chris learned the skills and trades from sideshow performers, stunt men and of course magicians & mind readers. All when he was between the ages of five and ten!

His first magic trick he learned was how to read a woman’s mind! (he was 8 years old). A skill Chris still uses to this day.. (for entertainment purposes only of course..) Website: www.chrisboltermagic.com

Recycle Mania Competition
Increase awareness of campus recycling. It begins to run January 20 through March 30
The Crookston Students for Sustainable Development (CSSD) is proud to announce that UMC has entered a nation-wide recycling competition called RecycleMania (http://www.recyclemania.org/). Over 385 colleges and universities will be participating in the 2013 RecycleMania competition that begins January 20 and runs through March 30. The goal of this competition is to increase awareness of campus recycling. All participating schools are required to report measurements (pounds of recycled materials divided by campus population) on a weekly basis. The school that collects the most recycleables in a variety of categories per capita wins! Weekly updates on UMC’s RecycleMania results may be viewed at http://recyclemaniacs.org/scoreboard/participating-schools?node_id=10497.

Let’s set a goal of placing 100% of our beverage containers and paper products in the appropriate recycling bins throughout campus. Cardboard should be flattened and placed behind the recycling bins. Student organizations will collect the recyclables and place them in outside containers for pick-up and weighing.

Look for additional information on upcoming friendly competitions and challenges, as well as information on how you can lead a more eco-friendly life.

For more information, please contact Ben Williams will3231@crk.umn.edu or Lisa Loegering loege005@umn.edu.

Liberal Arts and Education Department at the U of M, Crookston Adds Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education following Approval by the Minnesota Board of Teaching; With the addition, Crookston campus now offers 27 bachelor’s degree programs

With approval by the Minnesota Board of Teaching, the University of Minnesota, Crookston will add a bachelor of science in elementary education to the current 26 bachelor’s degree programs offered. The bachelor of science degree in elementary education is a career-oriented program that prepares students to be effective teachers of children from kindergarten through grade six. Students have an option to double major in elementary education along with early childhood education, which includes the birth through grade three licensure already available on the Crookston campus.

Graduates of the teacher education program design, implement, and evaluate developmentally appropriate learning experiences for children in elementary education classrooms. They are prepared to work collaboratively with families and in the community. A dual major with early childhood education provides significant opportunities for professional positions in these programs: kindergarten through sixth grade, infant and toddler care and education, preschool programs, Head Start, and early childhood family education. The elementary education program has three academic core areas of required coursework—education core, family core, and elementary education core. A new Web page includes more detailed information about the major at www.umcrookston.edu/elementaryed.
