UMC Music and Theater Department presents ‘Arsenic and Old Lace’
Thursday-Friday, 2-3 May, 7:30 PM in Kiehle Auditorium
The University of Minnesota Crookston Music and Theater Department will present “Arsenic and Old Lace” on Thursday, May 2, and Friday, May 3, at 7:30 p.m. nightly in Kiehle Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and children. Student Bethany Motley will produce the show with Associate Professor George French as an undergraduate research opportunity project.

“Arsenic and Old Lace” is a play by American playwright Joseph Kesselring. It is a black comedy centered around Mortimer Brewster, a drama critic who must deal with his crazy, homicidal family and local police in Brooklyn, NY, as he considers marrying the woman he loves. The family includes two spinster aunts who poison lonely old men; a brother who believes he is Theodore Roosevelt; and a murderous brother who has received plastic surgery performed by an alcoholic accomplice to conceal his identity.

Rachel McCoppin, Ph.D., Recognized with Horace T. Morse U of M Alumni Association Award for Outstanding Contributions to Undergraduate Education

By Elizabeth Tellefson

Listening is a big part of learning. For Rachel McCoppin, Ph.D., associate professor in the Liberal Arts and Education Department at the University of Minnesota Crookston, listening plays just as significant a role in teaching. McCoppin was recognized recently for her teaching when she was named a recipient of the prestigious Horace T. Morse U of M Alumni Association Award for Outstanding Contributions to Undergraduate Education.

McCoppin has been teaching in the area of literature and humanities at the U of M Crookston since 2003. She will be recognized, along with six others, at a ceremony on Tuesday, April 30, 2013, at the McNamara Alumni Center in Minneapolis. The annual award recognition honors the University’s best teaching professors for their contributions to undergraduate, graduate, and professional education. The ceremony includes comments from recipients, presentations of the awards, and a reception.

“The student voice is as important as any voice in my classroom,” McCoppin says. “It is through listening that I grow as an instructor and I witness students in my classes develop.” As a college student, McCoppin found she enjoyed classes most where students and the instructor interacted as equals in a discussion. While these kinds of classes are harder to prepare for, McCoppin feels they challenge her as well as build her confidence as an instructor.

Diversity in the classroom is a deeply held value for McCoppin, and she sees teaching as transformative. She welcomes discussions in her classroom that include more than just western ideas, but rather, uses the topics as a path to uncover ideas and perspectives in ancient literature and incorporate them into the study. “It requires intense critical thinking and a search for evidence for my students and me,” McCoppin says. “But, it has proven to be a way for me to bring the whole world to the study of humanities.”

McCoppin was promoted from assistant professor to associate professor with tenure in August 2009. She earned her doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Pa., her master or arts from Northern Michigan University, Marquette, Mich., and her bachelor of arts from the University of Michigan, Flint, in English. Her research interests include mythology, world literature, and the pedagogy of literature and ethics.

This week the Eagle’s Eye introduces new Brain teasers, which is called “Rebus Puzzles.” A REBUS is a picture representation of a name, work, or phrase. Each “rebus” puzzle box portrays a common word or phrase. Can you guess what it is? Example)

Head to Heels

Answer for Head HEELS: Since the word HEAD is over the word HEELS, the answer to the puzzle would be HEAD OVER HEELS!

Corporate

Answer for Corporate: Because the word Corporate is getting smaller, the answer to the puzzle would be Corporate Downsizing!

Answer of last week was “Settle Down” and winner is Dru Delange. Winner can pick up a free movie pass from Meloni in 236 Sargeant Student Center. If you think you know the answer to this week’s Rebus, send an e-mail to meloni (melonir@umn.edu). A winner will be chosen from the correct answers. The winner for the final week receive 2 free tickets to the Grand Theatre in Crookston. Email your answer to Meloni prior to noon on Thursday, May 2, 2013. The winner’s name will appear in the May 6, 2013 Eagle’s Eye.
