Four Receive UMC Torch and Shield Awards for 2003

The University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) honored four individuals at the annual Torch and Shield Awards Program, held Tuesday, November 18, in Kiehle Auditorium on the campus. The Torch and Shield Award recognizes individuals who have provided leadership and who have aided in the development of UMC and the Northwest Research and Outreach Center. The award has been presented regularly since 1966, when the campus first began offering college courses. This year's award recipients include George Marx, Jerry Rude, Mil Sahlstrom, and Don Sargeant.

Rude, Sahlstrom, and Sargeant were present to receive their awards. Marx, who was out of the country, accepted his award and addressed the audience via a videoclip taped earlier.

Mil Sahlstrom set the standard for gracious hosting

Serving as first lady of the new University of Minnesota Technical Institute at Crookston in 1965, Mil Sahlstrom set the standard for gracious hosting and steadfast support for the new two-year college and its leaders. The wife of founding provost Stanley Sahlstrom, she quickly emerged as a campus leader in her own way. Mil skillfully balanced a career of teaching and work in real estate with university life. She organized the UMC Faculty Women's Association, served as a coordinator and original cast member of the "Faculty Frolics," assisted with fundraising and scholarship drives, and hosted state legislators when they visited Crookston.

Mil was also active in the community, working with the Matron's Club, renewing interest in the Crookston League of Women Voters, and promoting the fine arts. Serving on the Crookston Fine Arts Committee, the Minnesota State Arts Board, and as a charter member of Minnesota Citizens for the Arts, she was influential in bringing performances by the Minnesota Orchestra to Crookston. On a lighter note, Mil is widely credited for introducing Crookstonites to borscht.

Not only did she and the founding provost help establish a new vision for higher education in northwest Minnesota, but they also raised four children, Kristine, David, Stephen, and Timothy. The couple, now retired, lives in St. Cloud.

CHRISTMAS MEMORIES

Many of us have Christmas memories and traditions that have stayed in our hearts forever. Travel back in time and try to remember your past Christmases.

Christmas when I was young, meant traveling to my Grandparent's house and celebrating with all of my aunts & uncles and a house full of cousins! It was always great fun to be with everyone! I would have to say my most memorable gift was when my grandma gave me a Mrs. Beasley Doll . . . I still have her!

--Stacey Grunewald

My Christmas memories as a child include being surrounded by lots of family. Christmas Eve we would enjoy a meal of spaghetti and meatballs and lots of other wonderful foods that my mom would prepare. The "good" china was always saved for holidays and my job was to set the table. It seemed like an eternity for the adults to clean up after dinner and do the dishes so we could open presents. Later that evening, we would go to midnight Mass. Christmas Eve always ended with us watching the Pope saying midnight Mass from the Vatican on TV. Christmas day would be spent relaxing and spending more time with family and friends.

Now that I have children, we have begun our own family traditions. We still spend time with lots of family at Christmas and go to Mass Christmas Eve and we also watch the Pope say Mass before we go to bed. My husband and his family are Norwegian so our meal on Christmas day includes lutefisk (along with another meat selection for us non-lutefisk eaters) as well as lots of other Norwegian goodies that are made by his mother and grandmother. I hope my children will have wonderful Christmas memories just as I do.

--Rose Ulseth

Driving 6 hours to Ryder, ND to visit all our relatives since both of my parents grew up there. We would spend Christmas Eve at my mom's parents and Christmas Day with Grandma Alice (dad's mom). There was always lots of snow in the ditches for tobogganing and we played "Kick the Can" out in the yard past midnight. Can't even recall how that game goes anymore...

Each year, I would take turns staying with two of my favorite cousins, Gail and Kristi (dad's side of the family). Grandma Alice always got all three of us the same present, but the one that sticks out the most was our "Libby, Libby, Libby" Dolls. We pulled the cord and heard her sayings over and over again. I've learned that you should never give toys like this to children or you'll drive the adults crazy . . . this is probably why they were such a big hit! My cousins and I still exchange gifts, but it's hard to find $5 gifts anymore. Even though we all live far away from each other, we're still very close and email and visit whenever we can.

We always had lots of turkey, ham and lefse - still my favorites to this day. Grandma Gladys hated the smell of turkey, but she would always bake one for everyone else and then make a ham besides, so she could enjoy the meal too. This is one sign of a great Grandma - making things that bring smiles to everyone's faces.

--Peg Sherven

Growing up, I was convinced that I was the luckiest child on earth because we celebrated Christmas three days in a row! December 23 was always our family Christmas. We enjoyed a special meal (I really don't remember the food - I was a kid, I was thinking about the presents!) Then after the dishes were washed and put away, we got to open our presents. One of my favorite gifts was my 20" blue Schwinn bicycle which I got to ride around the house. This is going to date me, but another of my favorites was my Chatty Cathy doll.

On Christmas Eve, we traveled to Fertile, MN to my mom's parent's home. We had a pot-luck meal with as many of my mom's ten brothers and sisters and their families that could come. The house was filled with aunts, uncles and cousins, and we had so much fun enjoying each other's company. We always toasted the season with Mogen David wine - even the kids got a sip - and there were trays laden with cookies and treats and more food than you could imagine and lefse to accompany it all. The Christmas tree at Grandma Nelson's was silver metallic with the quad-colored plastic light that revolved and shone on it. All of us had real Christmas trees, so we thought this one was so cool. And, of course, we had presents again which made all of us children especially joyful! Then on Christmas Day we piled food and gifts into the car again and drove to rural Gary, MN, where we celebrated with my dad's family. The snow always seemed whiter and the air crisper at my Grandma Noss' farm home. My dad was from a family of twelve, so this celebration also included many aunts, uncles, and cousins. We gathered around the piano and sang Christmas carols and read the Christmas Story after dinner. Often our Christmas dinner included lutefisk and lefse, and we lived to tell about it! After the men caught a nap in the living room, we exchanged gifts. And we finished the day by enjoying my Grandma's Norwegian baking - krumkake, fattigman, rosettes, fruit cake, and spritz.

Looking back, it really wasn't the presents, it was all of my family that made each Christmas the best ever!
