What was the general feeling?	We thought that once we lit the lights people showed a real good response and we were then very excited about what we had done.	It was a fun meeting.	Everyone really likes doing this project it is fun and makes everyone feel like they are accomplishing something.	Everyone walked away with a sense of helping the community. Also the impression from the volunteers was very positive and felt their time was very	They loved getting together with all of the little kids and helping them out. It just was a great experience	We all like helping with Habitat- it's fun and makes us feel like we helped someone.	They were happy to have helped the CSA with their project.	They were happy to have taught the kids about the horses.
Who did you serve and how many people benefited from your service?	The community an dthe campus community.	Crookston Garden Club. About 14 people attended.	Elderly and disabled people	Most of all the children got the most out of the program because they learned about the birds that they would see as well as spent time with	The birds of crookston, the kids and the parents of the kids themselves. I would say about 45 people total around here directly.	The family that is moving in.	I believe that mostly the member of the CSA were benifited, so they didn't have to do all of the work.	The kids from the local schools.
How did you find out about this project?	Trevor Alt came up with the idea.	The Garden Club contacted us and requested the meeting and program.	Through bede info desk, Mike Christopherson	It's a crookston tradition for the past 20 years. UMC Nat. R. has traditonally helped with the event.	We do this every year.
